Priscilla Parmalee, Aged New Lenox Resident Answers Final Call

Miss Priscilla Parmalee, well known resident of New Lenox died Saturday morning at her home, at the age of 84 years.

The deceased was the daughter of Amos Parmalee, who with his wife and children came from New York state and settled in the town of Orland over forty years ago. After residing there for a number of years the farm was sold and the family moved to Mokena, locating on the former Mineral Spring farm. Following the death of Mr. Parmalee at Mokena, Mrs. Parmalee and daughters, Jane, Priscilla and Emma moved to New Lenox. They bought the place in which the Parmalee sisters have resided near the Camp Grounds.

Mrs. Parmalee died at New Lenox, also the daughter Emma. Following their deaths the two sisters, Priscilla and Jane lived a life of seclusion for over twenty years. Very little was known about the family by the neighbors as they were very reticent about their family affairs.

The deceased was in poor health for many years and was faithfully cared for by her sister. About four weeks ago she was taken seriously ill and then Jane told the neighbors, who called a physician, but the infirmities of age had weakened the patient beyond medical help. The New Lenox Red Cross chapter placed a nurse in the home.

An effort was made to find relatives, if any of the aged sisters who insisted they had no blood relation, but a nephew was located in Chicago who stated he was the son of Horace Parmalee, a brother of the sisters mentioned.

This brother has been dead a number of years. A peculiar situation arose. Mr. Parmalee insisted that he was a blood relative, while the sisters equally insisted he was not. However, he remained to take charge of the funeral upon the death of Priscilla.

Funeral services were held from the late home Monday, at 7:30 a. m. by Rev. Mr. Dunbar of the New Lenox M. E. church. As the roads were too muddy the funeral party took the Wabash train to Orland, where burial took place in the Orland cemetery, with Rev. Dunbar officiating at the grave. By special arrangement with the Wabash, the south bound fast train was stopped to bring the funeral party back.

Miss Jane Parmalee, the surviving sister is alone now and

Delander And Jeffrey County Candidates Call on Country Voters

Despite the fact that the primaries are not held until April, candidates for the various county offices to be voted on at that time are actively engaged in campaigning through the county.

Albion F. Delander, candidate for county clerk, was in Frankfort Township Monday discussing the situation with several of his personal friends. Mr. Delander, who is at present, deputy county clerk in charge of the law division of the office, had no comment to make regarding the general political outlook.

"I really haven't had the time to give much thought to the general political aspect," Mr. Delander said. "I have been too occupied with my duties at the office and with thinking of my own candidacy, to give much thought to the campaigns of others."

Mr. Delander is the only candidate announced for the office of county clerk. Because of the wide field of work covered by the county clerk and the technical knowledge necessary to carry on the various departments and divisions of the office, there are usually fewer candidates for this office than any other.

"Arch" Jeffrey, who is also a well known candidate called on Mokena voters Monday. He is a candidate for the office of sheriff of Will County. He also called in Frankfort recently. He is widely known thruout the county.

At present Mr. Jeffrey is connected with the county treasurers office.

VILLAGE WINS IMPORTANT LAW SUIT

The Village of Matteson, won an important case in the county Court of Chicago. Several months ago a drainage district, embracing about 2000 acres South east of Matteson was organized with its outlet into the reservoir just east of I. C. railroad tracks in Matteson. From this reservoir there is a natural ditch running west thru the village of Matteson. The Commissioners by Attorney Meier and Judge Carrier of Chicago Heights contended that since they were contemplating conveying the water thru a natural ditch into the reservoir, they could empty the water into the reservoir and stop without regard for the village. The village of Matteson engaged Attorney A. H. Krusemark of Joliet who in turn claimed that the Drainage District must build their ditch thru the village, build concrete retaining walls and culverts thru the streets, this the District refused to do, and proceedings were started by the village. The County Court upheld the contention of the village and directed the Commissioners to abandon their plans and build the ditch thru the village, build retaining walls and concrete culverts thru the streets. This was rather an unusual proceeding and is considered of tremendous importance to the village.

Former Tinley Park Girl Weds Chicago Man

Miss Amelia Hick, sister of Mrs. August Messenbrink of Tinley Park, was married on Thanksgiving night in Chicago to Raymond Brennan, the wedding taking place at the home of the groom. The bride was prettily attired in a gown of white canton crepe and wore a hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white roses. Miss Alice Riley was the maid of honor. Following the wedding a sumptuous dinner was served. The newly wedded couple will make their home for the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Philip Derr. The groom is employed in the bakery operated by Mr. Derr. A host of friends wish the newly weds much happiness.

Fred Funk and family spent Thanksgiving day with Mrs. John Hartman. Mr. Funk is just recovering from an accident. At the time John Hartman died he was coming toward Tinley Park in his car when another machine collided with him on the outskirts of Chicago. His car was upset and he was pinned under it being quite badly bruised. The other occupants of the car escaped injury.

EDUCATIONAL WEEK OBSERVED BY SCHOOL

The Mokena School will observe American Educational Week by giving a FREE entertainment at the Hatch hall on the evening of Dec. 8th at 7:30.

The entertainment will consist of songs, music and reading, and an address by Mr. August Maue, County Superintendent of School. School work done this year will be on exhibition also.

It is the duty of all friends of education to think seriously and work hard on the problem of keeping the idea of public education before the people.

We heartily invite you to come and help us to make this a pleasant and a profitable Community meeting.

W. P. Flaherty, Principal. Mr. A. Hodell returned home Monday from St. Joe hospital. Miss Minnie Eggers has been very sick the past week and is but little improved.

ANOTHER SOCIETY FORMED IN MOKENA

The social as well as the welfare activities in the village will certainly receive lots of attention this winter. Besides the various societies and clubs now in existence, another was formed last Friday evening. The object will be; the uplifting of the morals of Mokena generally and at the same time, to promote good fellowship among the residents.

The society will be known as the Ladies Aid Society of Bowman Dairy Company.

After discussing ways and means to take hold of the various problems, the following "ladies" were elected as officers for the ensuing year. Herman Schweser, President; Gus Werner Vice Pres.; Ed. Schenkel, Secty.; Ed. Werner, Treas.; John Schultz Doorkeeper and Fred Steinhagen Bouncer. The society will meet weekly and eventually expects to "do" the village good.

THE PASSING OF A FRIEND

Another old timer has passed into oblivion as everything does that passes beyond the stage of usefulness. The old landmark that has so quietly slipped into the past is the old Northwestern switchboard which has served the Mokena telephone exchange for over 22 years. Thousands, perhaps we should say, millions of messages have passed thru this board since its installation. Messages of business, joy, sorrow, ordinary gossip and the general run of calls were handled by the old timer.

When the Bell Telephone absorbed the old Inter-State Co., the life of the old board came to a close. This week the final obsequies took place when the new switchboard was connected up Monday night and the old relic of the early telephone days was dismantled.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Zahn were the first operators and local managers. They have both passed to the Great Beyond. The Rink sisters had charge of the exchange next for many years and one sister, Mary, has also passed Beyond, so that three of the faithful operators have passed on and now the switchboard which they so faithfully operated has also passed on.

Hunger and Yankee Methods Conquer "Unchanging East"

Relief workers (at top) teaching Armenian refugees how to master the intricacies of an American tractor.

A typical refugee camp (at bottom). Even with American help it has been a struggle to keep the refugees alive.

The Unchanging East, where methods and customs have remained unaffected by the vicissitudes of a score of centuries, at last yields to hunger and the missionaries of American progress. Six thousands acres of rich farm land in Thrace will soon be turned by the sharp blade of an American tractor and cultivated under the latest methods of the Middle Western farmer.

"No food nourishes which is not earned," assert American workers of the Near East Relief in Constantinople, who for the past three years have been facing with the pressing problem of feeding an ever increasing army of refugees on insufficient supplies or funds. Thousands have been housed in wretched camps unfit for habitation. Food has been scarce and employment out of the question. Hunger and suffering has prompted discontent, and revolutionary plots have been reported by the scores daily, causing the Allied Administration in the city grave concern. The death rate mounted with ghastly rapidity. Something had to be done.

Alabama Man's Plan. And something was done. Realizing that with the increased demands in the famine districts of the Caucasus and with funds dwindling as the refugee problem increased, James Crutcher, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., director of the Near East Relief for the Constantinople district, appealed to the Greek authorities in Thrace, where there is an abundance of rich, fertile soil, much of it not worked.

An agreement was reached, whereby the relief organization rented the land, agreed to provide the latest American agricultural machinery, and aid one thousand Armenian refugees erect the first permanent homes they had known in years. Immediate steps were made to set in motion the plan made possible by this agreement. Crutcher has just called National Headquarters of the Near East Relief in New York that the advance guard of refugees are already in Thrace. More will be sent as finances allow and as soon as the present shortage of farm implements can be remedied.

Cheerfully, he reports, they are abandoning methods handed down through the generations and accepting the instructions of American agricultural experts, as they take lessons in how to operate a motor tractor and other modern farm machines. Cost Not Excessive. "We are laying out only a little more money," he says, "in this work, than would have been required to continue supporting the refugees in the filthy camps. And what money is being spent will be returned as the people prosper in their new homes. Experts assure us that there will be a fifteen bushel crop return for every bushel of seed wheat planted.

"And this means the making possible of a further concentration of effort in the Caucasus and other regions where people are dying on the streets, because we cannot take care of all who are in need."

A Choral Society is being organized with Mrs. Wesley Hollstein in charge as director. The Society has a membership of 17. It is hoped to make the organization a community affair and to give entertainments during the winter. At present the Society is rehearsing for the cantata "The Hope of the World" which will be presented at the Frankfort M. E. Church on Christmas eve. It is hoped that the young people of this community who are musically inclined will get busy and boost the new organization.

Mrs. Frank Folkers has been recently elected president of the Ladies' Aid of the M. E. Church.

Plans are under way by the M. E. Church for a supper to be given in the near future. Date will be announced later.

REAL FAT SANTA CLAUS COMING. Rev. Theo. Miner, pastor of the M. E. Church has induced his friend, Judge Wm. C. Levere of Evanston to play the role of Santa Claus at the M. E. Church Christmas exercises on Christmas eve. Judge Levere, it is understood, will represent the Santa Claus we are so familiar with, and this without any difficulty as he is of 280 pounds avoirdupois.

During the Christmas holiday a stereopticon lecture on South America will be given at the M. E. Church by Alva Jones of Evanston. Mr. Jones has been thru South America and will give a graphic account of his travels.

A movement is on to get Bishop Nicholson of the M. E. Church to give a lecture in Frankfort some time this winter.

Thomas McGlashen who has been running a stock farm east of here for many years, is retiring from the strenuous activities of the stockman's life and will be succeeded by Joe Scott. Mr. McGlashen will remain on the farm during the winter.

The Frankfort Basketball team is quite a live wire affair. Thus far they have won every game of this season. Last Thursday they played the Bell Telephone team of Joliet and defeated them with a score of 9 to 23. The game was played at Frankfort Hall and the hall was well filled.

Mrs. Peter Folkers has been on the sick list the past week.

W. H. Peters, well known Civil War veteran and old time resident of Frankfort, is on the sick list and has been confined to his bed the past week. His many friends hope for an early recovery.

The Frankfort R. N. A. will hold a card party at the Frankfort Hall on December 9th.

Not Just What the Deputy Expected

Deputy Sheriff Malley Jones received an awful shock when he had arrested Pat Scott on a charge of illegal liquor selling in Jacksonville, Fla. He opened Scott's suitcase expecting to find a few quarts of liquor, and out-wriggled a six-foot gopher snake. Scott explained that "Old Joe" was harmless and merely a pet.

ILLINOIS
STATE NEWS

The nation's apple crop suffered a severe slump this year, dropping to 33.4 per cent of the normal yield, according to the United States agricultural statistician at Springfield. Illinois' crop of 1,852,000 bushels was about 15 per cent of the state's normal yield. Last year Illinois produced 6,175,000 bushels of apples. The commercial yield of 1,441,000 barrels in 1920 fell off to 432,000 barrels this year. Illinois apples not only fell far below the average of the short crop of the nation in quantity this year, but also were of poorer quality than the average. It is estimated that 79.5 per cent of the crop of the United States was of a medium high grade, but only 62 per cent of the Illinois apples were of equal grade.

Unable to spend all the money the government provided, Illinois schools this year forfeited $19,687.92 of federal aid for vocational education. The government offered $219,048.37, but Illinois spent only $199,360.45. Next year Illinois will have a yet larger amount. Figures as received from Washington show that this state has been allotted $244,965.30, which is $25,916.93 more than was offered for 1921. The government requires that the 1922 money be divided as follows: Agricultural courses, $60,684.65; trade industrial and home economics courses, $133,676.28; and administration expense, $61,004.97.

Illinois miners closed their convention at Peoria and again chose Peoria as the next meeting place. The convention ended with a speech by President Frank Farrington, who urged loyalty and said it was something the miners need more now than at any time before. "The joint wage agreement terminates in a few months," he said, "and when this terminates I fear the worst will come. We are confronted with a situation never before faced by our organization. Internal strife threatens us. Outside forces are threatening to destroy us, but in unity and harmony we can survive these dangers."

Montgomery North, a wealthy farmer who lives near El Paso, pleaded guilty in circuit court at Bloomington of complicity in the robbery of the Hudson State bank of Hudson, last June. He was given an indeterminate sentence in the Joliet prison by Circuit Judge Edward Barry. North and Welch, heavily armed, held up the bank in broad daylight last June, holding a crowd of Hudson residents at bay by a fusillade of shots as they dashed away in North's automobile. They obtained only $500 by the robbery.

Illinois cornfields will produce an average yield of 35.2 bushels an acre this year, according to estimates made by the United States agricultural statistician at Springfield. This is 15 per cent above the ten-year average. These estimates indicate a crop of about 304,550,000 bushels, compared with 194,168,000 bushels last year. The average production for five years from 1915 to 1919 was 346,330,000 bushels. Illinois ranks second among the 23 corn-producing states this year.

Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, director of public health of Illinois, has issued a warning to all persons not already protected against smallpox to be vaccinated at once. The warning is issued because of the malignant form of smallpox now epidemic in Kansas City and other nearby points. Doctor Rawlings also calls attention to the fact that there was a very decided increase in the disease in Illinois during the last fiscal year.

County boards in nearly all of the counties of the old Eighth judicial circuit will aid the state and the Daughters of the American Revolution in permanently marking the route of the old circuit traveled by Abraham Lincoln and other Illinois celebrities of more than a half-century ago. Indications point toward realization by the Lincoln Circuit Marking association next year of their object in having the trail permanently marked. Designs for the markers have been completed. The association was organized eight years ago through efforts of leaders of the D. A. R. as part of their program for preserving and marking historic sites associated with the name of Lincoln.

From 85 to 92 per cent of the onion sets of the United States are raised on small farms on the outskirts of Chicago, according to a report to the Illinois Agricultural association by the Cook county farm bureau. These figures, it is explained, are based upon United States market reports. The onion set growers are planning a meeting in December with the director of the fruit and vegetable marketing department of the association, to discuss the prospect of a co-operative marketing company. More than 600 farms in the county raise onion sets exclusively, or nearly so.

The Appellate court for the Fourth district in an opinion handed down at Mount Vernon, orders Edward E. Mitchell of Carbondale to pay to the state of Illinois the sum of $20,000. The money was a portion of the Kasaskia Commons permanent school fund, which was loaned by Mr. Mitchell as state treasurer, under the provisions of a special act of the general assembly. Mr. Mitchell loaned it to a flour concern in Minneapolis, which later failed.

The dissolution of the White Hall Community High school district at an election ends a most stormy voyage of the community proposition, the votes showing more than a hundred over the necessary two-thirds. The district was organized in the spring of 1919, and the opposition was then set in motion that brought owners of the proposed high school about the result of freeing the land-tax.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. Walker

MAKING FRIENDS.

IF YOU would be happy make others happy. Don't neglect to do a kindness when an opportunity comes to you.

It matters not where you may be, whether on your own threshold or beneath the sky of a foreign land, ever remember that by being friendly you are making some soul happier, lightening a hidden burden, doing your bit to brighten the world, and in doing it becoming healthier and sweeter yourself.

Of all felicities friendship is the most charming.

It eases cares, dispels sorrows and makes for salvation of souls.

It becomes an inspiration to you when the days are dark—a divine joy that all the wealth of the world cannot buy.

There are people everywhere whose hearts are hungry for appreciation and sympathy. Help them through the mazes where naught but briars grow. Strew o'er their rugged way the flowers of friendship and clasp them by the hand.

Pour sunshine into their hearts and see the new light that comes into their dull eyes and the smile that plays about their lips.

Some writer has said that "pure friendship is something which men of an inferior nature can never taste."

Euripides tells us, "It is a good thing to be rich, and a good thing to be strong, but it is a better thing to be beloved of many friends."

It is by friendship that we must strive to battle for truth and righteousness. All departures from friendliness takes to coldness and strife. Consider what the world would be if all the nations of earth were friendly! It was through friendship that the souls of men were redeemed!

Think what it would mean for the peace, contentment, security and prosperity of the people, if they dwelled in amity, unconcerned about war, enjoying quiet homes with their loved ones, with never a doubt about their neighbors and never a thought of the jealousies or the evil ambitions of the countries beyond the sea!

Neither the rich nor the poor, nor the high nor the low can partake of the full blessings of life without friendship. We cannot get the best within the world without giving the best within us.

And this excellent thing, this divine essence that exalts men and women, takes them to the very gates of heaven and stirs the fountain of good within their souls, is nothing more or less than simple friendship.

WE ARE the wise, the very wise Who have no need of God; We understand His seas, His skies,

His sunset and His sod, There is no magic in a rose, Its petals pulled apart, For we explain just how it grows With scientific art.

And yet no man I ever knew Could tell me how the first one grew. We are the wise, the very wise— All things we understand; It is no trick to analyze And give them breed and brand. We know the distances of night From Pleiades to Mars, And we can measure all the light Of all the shining stars.

And yet, I wonder, could we place A single star in all of space? We are the wise, the very wise, No need of God have we, We know man lives, we know man dies—

The rest is mystery. And, since we cannot comprehend, No more may hope to know, We say that death must be the end And nothing more is so. It seems to me, mere manikins, Our knowledge ends where God's begins.

SCHOOL DAYS

Use it intensively, and get all the work into it that can be packed there. Use every hour effectively, either in work or play. But never borrow any of it ahead. Never put a mortgage on the hours of tomorrow or of next week.

And, being careful not to borrow any of your own time, be just as careful not to borrow any time that belongs to others, by dropping into offices for idle chats, or interrupting them when they are at work.

Time is the one thing in the world with a fixed limit. That which is borrowed is lost, and none of us have so much that we can lose it without disastrous consequences.

THE FRIENDLY PATH

By WALTER I. ROBINSON.

THE sun cannot shine constantly. There always will be some rainy days.

A person who would throw away his umbrella or his raincoat every time the clouds disappeared would be considered a lunatic.

One meal will not satisfy our stomachs the remainder of our lives. We must eat every so often if we wish to live and avoid hunger. No one would think of eating everything he had if he didn't expect to get another meal within a reasonable time.

These assertions may seem but primary lessons on the importance of vision. Yet many of mature age could study them with benefit. Experience already has taught quite a few that looking ahead is essential to happiness and comfort.

Wages and incomes during the last few years have been higher than ever before. Luxury buying and extravagance in pleasures seeking have gone along together. Many thought they had struck a "well of gold" that never would go dry.

But the inevitable has happened. Those who demanded exorbitant profits and those who forced high wages and who, in both instances, spent as fast as they received, are beginning to see the folly of their ways. In many cases the fruit has an extremely bitter taste.

A little vision in the beginning would have prevented cries of distress. Some may find it too late to benefit from their lesson since they are sliding down the precipice. These will have many difficulties in climbing back over the jagged rocks.

Few there are who cannot still make a start in the road of thrift and fairness which is the sure way to prepare if "rainy days" should come.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

MORE LAMB AND MUTTON.

Those who object to mutton (which is so popular in England) do not object to the nicely roasted joint or leg of lamb if it is properly killed and cared for. The skin should always be removed. Do not touch the meat after handling the skin. The wool grows on the skin and the oil from the wool gives the meat the objectionable flavor.

Roast Leg of Lamb.—Rub salt, pepper and onion with any sweet fat all over the meat. Place in a roasting pan and sear it well in a hot oven. Now add one-half cupful of water, one cupful of tomato or two sliced fresh ones, one onion and six or eight peeled potatoes around the leg of lamb. Roast in a hot oven and serve very hot with a gravy made from the liquor in the pan. Mint sauce may be served with it if desired.

Mutton Stew.—Take a neck piece and put on to cook in boiling water with a small onion. Simmer until tender, then add a can of peas, thicken the gravy and serve the peas and gravy poured around the meat. Season well with salt and pepper while cooking.

Mutton en Casserole.—Brown a pound or less of mutton cut from the shoulder, cut in serving sized pieces. When well browned season with salt, pepper and dredge with flour. Add one cupful or more of carrots, a cupful of peas, one onion and place in a casserole to bake for two or three hours. Serve from the casserole.

Barbecued Lamb.—Cut cold lamb in slices and reheat them in the following sauce: Two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half tablespoonful of vinegar, one-third cupful of currant jelly and one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard. Cook until the lamb is well heated and flavored.

Lamb Patties.—Grind meat from the shoulder, season, form into small patties, wrap each in a strip of bacon, fastening with a toothpick. Fry until well browned in a hot frying pan and serve with the pan gravy.

Softly the evening came. The sun from the western horizon Like a magician extended his golden wand o'er the landscape. Twinkling vapors arose, and sky and water and forest Seemed all on fire at the touch, and melted and mingled together. —Evangelina.

WORTH WHILE DISHES.

After you have enjoyed Hubbard squash, baked and steamed and mashed, the following dish will be worth while trying:

Scuffled Squash.—Take a medium sized Hubbard squash, remove the seeds and the stringy portion and remove the rind. Place in a steamer and cook over boiling water until tender, then mash and season to taste with salt, pepper and butter. To two cupfuls of the mashed squash add gradually one cupful of cream and when well mixed, the yolks of two well-beaten eggs. Mix well, then fold in the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Serve at once.

Bread Sponge Cake.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of lard or any sweet fat, two well-beaten eggs, one-fourth of a cupful of sweet milk, two cupfuls of bread sponge, three cupfuls of flour and one teaspoonful of soda. Add spices, raisins and a few nuts if liked. Mix well and when risen bake.

Stuffed Quinces.—Peel and core six quinces and place them in a baking dish with one cupful each of sugar and water. Fill the cavities with chopped nuts and raisins, cover and bake until tender; set aside to cool. Serve with cream.

Golden Fleece.—Break in bits and melt in a frying pan one-half pound of cheese, adding one cupful of cream and a dash of cayenne. When smooth break over this mixture five fresh eggs, cover for two minutes; when the white is set, remove the cover, add salt and beat the mass briskly with a large spoon for a few minutes. It will rise in a yellow foam. Serve on buttered crackers or toast.

Peanut Butter Fudge.—Take two cupfuls of confectioner's sugar, one-half cupful of sweet milk, four tablespoonfuls of peanut butter; boil five minutes, stir until it thickens, pour into buttered pan and cut in squares.

Halibut Salad.—Place flaked halibut (smoked) on a bed of lettuce. Pound the yolk of a hard-cooked egg and three sardines to a paste, removing the skin and bones. Mix this paste with boiled dressing or mayonnaise and pour over the fish. Garnish with overlapping slices of lemon.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

COMMUNITY SERVICE RECORD

Logansport, Ind., has a record of strenuous community service. Among the year's activities the following are reported:

One-hundred scouts gave 500 hours of service at the Kiwanis play-fest serving as guides, ushers, kitchen helpers, guarding automobiles, tending check room, acting as messengers, etc. In addition one entire troop gave four days of their time distributing posters, etc. 22 scouts assisted the Salvation army getting its new building in shape, giving at least 200 hours of free service.

Two-hundred scouts decorated graves of soldiers on Memorial day. Distributed 200 fire prevention cards.

Fifty scouts worked 12 hours assisting the American Legion at its big Fourth of July celebration. Saved the lives of 12 persons from drowning in six months. Other services were performed for the Red Cross, G. A. R., D. A. R., Camp Fire Guardians, Public Health Nurses, Epworth league and the Masons.

STAR SCOUT WINS BADGE.

Among the various Merit badges which are open to first-class scouts is one which boys rarely apply for, though it is an interesting one. This unusual badge in blacksmithing has just been won by Robert Reed, a star scout of troop No. 11, Oak Park, Ill. Most of the required preliminary work was done in connection with his manual training work in high school. The requirements for the Merit badge in blacksmithing are as follows:

1. Make an open link of $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch stock.
2. Forge a chain hook out of $\frac{3}{4}$ by $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch soft steel, or $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch round iron.
3. Make a bolt of $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch stock.
4. Bend and weld three links and form them into a chain, these links to be fastened to the hook of requirement No. 2 by a ring, and links and ring to be made out of $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch round iron.
5. Make a straight lap weld of $\frac{1}{2}$ by 1-inch stock.
6. Make a cold chisel out of $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch hexagonal tool steel.
7. Temper a rock drill.
8. Explain how to harden and temper a cold chisel.

GOOD TURNS OF ONE TROOP.

Troop 3 of Flushing, Long Island, reports the following "good turns":

Five scouts took part in first memorial Roosevelt pilgrimage, 1920; troop took tickets for All American mass meeting, 1921; distributed 500 circulars for aid of starving Serbians; 200 posters for hospital drive; assisted at Memorial day services for G. A. R.; assisted at Rotary club meeting; distributed boxes in Salvation army drive; helped clean vacant lots; one member of troop rescued a boy from drowning. Notwithstanding all this activity this troop has been keen for scoutcraft advancement also. During the year 13 boys became tenderfoot scouts, 19 entered second class and six became first class. One life and one star scout and two eagles are also on the troop's record.

RELAY PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald offers a permanent cup trophy for a relay race to be competed for annually by Boy scout troops of the Herald parish in connection with the State fair. Last year the runners carried a message from General Pershing to Governor Smith. This year the message was from President Harding to Governor Miller and was won by the Phoenix boy scout team who carried the message from Auburn to the fair grounds, a distance of 26½ miles in 2 hours, 19 minutes, 10 seconds. The fastest individual contestant was Howard Moyer, who ran a half mile in 2 minutes, ten seconds.

CITY STRONG FOR SCOUTING.

A scoutmaster of Mt. Pleasant, Utah, reports that nine per cent of the population of the city are in scouting and that the whole town is behind the scout movement heart and soul, because they see the wonderful results it is having among the boys who are in it. The scouts themselves are very much alive and keen on the outdoor part of the thing. One of the interesting features of their last summer program was a six-day auto trip to Bryce canyon, a distance of 400 miles, camping en route. The party number 175, 110 of whom were scouts, the others fathers of scouts and others interested in the movement.

WORK OF BOY SCOUTS.

Cincinnati scouts distributed 5,000 window cards in connection with health week campaign.

Mayor Barley has issued a proclamation to the citizens of Denver, urging financial support and genuine cooperation with the local boy scout organization, declaring that boy scouts are "indispensable" to the best interests of every city. The proclamation was issued apropos to the boy scout week celebration which Denver recently observed.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

NEVER BORROW TIME

YOU can replace a borrowed ten dollars, little the worse for the borrowing.

You cannot replace a borrowed hour, for that particular hour will never come to you again.

The amount of money a man can make is limited only by his energy and acquisitive ability, which is otherwise known as his financial genius.

The amount of time he has, has a definite limit. The billionaire has no more of it than the longshoreman—usually not nearly so much.

When you put off today's job till tomorrow you are borrowing time from yourself, which is a very dangerous practice.

Today's job has got to be done sometime. You can do it better in the time in which it was intended to be done than in the time that belongs to tomorrow's job.

The time borrower is always behind-hand. His work accumulates until much of it must be left undone.

His affairs become involved for lack of time to attend to them. For that borrowed time is gone. There is no power on earth that can restore it to you.

To take for idleness the time that ought to be devoted to work is borrowing either from tomorrow's work or tonight's recreation. The recreation is as important as the work. You have no right to borrow the time that should be given it.

Apportion your time carefully. If you are the average sort of a person you consume about three times as much of it as you need for a given amount of work.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

by Nellie Maxwell

There are great changes in the world, great changes, and we can't do better than prepare ourselves to be surprised at hardly anything.—Dickens.

SOME GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

IF THERE are any old-fashioned members of the family still present they will enjoy

Hot Water Gingerbread.

Take one cupful each of sugar and molasses, one-half cupful of melted shortening, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of ginger, one beaten egg, three cupfuls of flour and when well mixed add a cupful of boiling water in which a teaspoonful of soda has been stirred. Pour into a baking pan and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven. The mixture will seem too thin, but will make a very delicate light cake.

Drop Cakes.

Take one-half cupful of softened butter, add one cupful of sugar, beat well, add one beaten egg, two cupfuls of flour, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of sour cream, two and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half cupful of sour cream; mix well and drop spoonfuls on a baking sheet. Sprinkle with granulated sugar and bake in a moderate oven.

Spiced Tongue.

Take a fresh calf's tongue, drop it into boiling water and let it simmer two hours. When it is cooked the skin will peel easily. Put four tablespoonfuls of butter into a saucepan and when bubbling hot add a cupful of small onions, one red pepper, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, a tablespoonful of vinegar, two small carrots, one-half pound each of dates and raisins, all chopped; then add a pint of liquor in which the tongue was cooked and simmer one hour. Remove the tongue, thicken the sauce and pour over the tongue.

Sharing sorrow is supposed to lighten it, but love, bereft, cares to share its sorrow with no one.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

The sorrows I had in my youth, How vain they seem now that they're past! It makes me uneasy to think I never have feelings that last.

"Crepuscular" Sun Rays.
 The beams of light sometimes seen radiating from the sun when not far from the horizon are called "crepuscular rays." They are due to rays of light passing through breaks in the clouds and made visible by dust or fine drops of water in the air. Their apparent divergence is an effect of perspective. The phenomenon is popularly described as "the sun drawing water." Sailors speak of the "sun's backstays," while Homer wrote of the "languid darts."

A Story of the Builders of Democracy

CHAPTER XVIII—Continued.

They saddled their horses and mounted and rode up to the door. After their acknowledgments and farewells Brimstead came close to Samson and said in confidence: "I enjoy being a millionaire for a few minutes now and then. It's as good as going to a circus and cheaper."

"The feelings of a millionaire are almost as good as the money while they last," said Abe Lincoln with a laugh.

At early candlelight they reached the sycamore woods very hungry. It was a beautiful grovelike forest on the shore of a stream. The crossing was a rough bridge of corduroy. A crude log tavern and a cruder store stood on the farther shore of the creek. The tavern was a dirty place with a drunken proprietor. Three ragged, shiftless farmers and a half-breed Indian sat in its main room in varying stages of inebriety. A well-dressed, handsome young man with a diamond in his shirt-front was leading a horse back and forth in the stable yard. The diamond led Samson to suspect that he was the man Davis of whom Mrs. Brimstead had spoken. Our travelers, not liking the look of the place, got some oats and rode on, camping near the farther edge of the woods, where they built a fire, fed and tethered their horses and sat down and ate from the store in their saddle-bags.

Then with their knives Abe and Samson cut big armfuls of grass from the near prairie for the horses and a bed upon which the three men lay down for the night.

Samson had that gift of "sleeping with one eye open" which the perils of the wilderness had conferred upon the pioneer. He had lain down on the side of their bed near the horses, which were tethered to trees only a few feet away. He had gone to sleep with his pistol under his right hand. Late in the night he was awakened by an unusual movement among the horses. In the dim light of the fire he could see a man in the act of bridling Abe's horse.

"Hold up your hands," Samson shouted as he covered the man with his pistol. "If ye stir a foot I'll bore a hole in ye."

The man threw up his hands and stood still.

In half a moment Abe Lincoln and Harry had got up and captured the man and the loosed horse.

This is part of the entry which Samson made in his diary a week or so later:

"Harry put some wood on the fire while Abe and I led him up into the light. He was one of the dirty white men we had seen at the tavern. "I'll give you four hundred dollars for a horse in good Michigan money," he said.

"If ye can't steal a horse you're willin' to buy one," I says.

"No, sir. I only come to buy," says he.

"I flopped him sudden and asked him why he was putting on the bridle. He owned up then. Said a man had hired him to steal the horse.

"That man has got to have a horse," he said. "He'll give ye any price ye want to ask. If you'll give me a few dollars I'll take ye to him."

"You go and bring him here and I'll talk to him," I said.

"I let the feller go. I didn't suppose he'd come back, but he did. Came a little before sunrise with that well-dressed feller we saw at the tavern.

"What's your name?" I says.

"He handed me a card on which I read the words Lionel Davis, Real Estate, Loans and Insurance, 14 South Water Street, Chicago, Ill."

"That's one branch o' your business that isn't mentioned on the card," I says.

"What's that?" says he.

"Horse-thief," says I. "You sent that feller here to steal a horse and he got caught."

"Well I told him if he'd get me a good horse I'd give him five hundred dollars and that I didn't care how he got him. The fact is I'm desperate. I'll give you a thousand dollars for one of your horses."

"You couldn't buy one of 'em at any price," I said. "There's two reasons. I wouldn't do business with a horse-thief and no money would tempt me to sell an animal to be ridden to death."

"The two thieves had had enough of us and they got out."

That night our party camped on the shore of the Kankakee and next day they met the contractors. Lincoln joined the latter party and Harry and Samson went on alone. Late that afternoon they crossed the nine-mile prairie, beyond which they could see the shimmer of the lake and the sunlit structures of the new city.

"There it is," said Samson. "Four thousand, one hundred and eighty people live there. It looks like a sturdy two-year-old."

The houses were small and cheaply built and of many colors. Some were unpainted. Near the prairie they stood like people on the outer edge of a crowd, looking over one another's shoulders and pushing in a disordered mass toward the center of interest. Some seemed to have straggled away as if they had given up trying to see or hear. So to one nearing it the town had a helter-skelter look.

Our travelers passed rough boarded houses with grand-looking people in their dooryards and on their small porches—men in broadcloth and tall hats and ladies in silk dresses. It was six o'clock and the men had come home to supper. As the horsemen proceeded larger buildings surrounded them, mostly two stories high. There were some stores and houses built of red brick. Beyond the scatter of cheap, wooden structures they came to streets well laid out and crowded and busy and "very soft" to quote a phrase from the diary. Teams were struggling in the mud, drivers shouting and lashing. Agents for hotels and boarding houses began to solicit the two horsemen from the plank sidewalks. The latter were deeply impressed by a negro in scarlet clothes, riding a horse in scarlet housings. He carried a scarlet banner and was advertising in a loud voice the hour and place of a great land sale that evening.

A sound of many hammers beating upon boards could be heard above the noises of the street and behind all was the constant droning of a big steam saw and the whir of the heavy stones in the new grist mill. It was the beginning of that amazing diapason of industry which accompanied the building of the cities of the West.

They put out in the livery stable of the City hotel and at the desk of the latter asked about the price of board. It was three dollars a day and no politeness in the offer.

"It's purty steep," said Samson. "But I'm too hungry for argument or delay and I guess we can stand it to be nabobs for a day or so."

The hotel clerk had a Register of the Residents of the City of Chicago wherein they found the name and address of John Kelso. They went out to find the house. Storekeepers tried to stop them as they passed along the street with offers of land at bargains which would make them millionaires in a week. In proceeding along the plank sidewalks they were often ascending or descending steps to another level.

On La Salle street they found the home of Jack Kelso. It was a rough boarded small house, a story and a half high. It had a little porch and dooryard enclosed by an unpainted picket fence. Bim, in a handsome, blue silk gown, came running out to meet them.

"If you don't mind I'm going to kiss you," she said to Harry.

"I'd mind if you didn't," said the young man as he embraced her.

"We must be careful not to get the habit," she laughed.

"I'd enjoy being careless for once," said Harry.

"Women can be extravagant with everything but carelessness," she insisted. "Do you like this gown?"

"It is lovely—like yourself."

"Then perhaps you will be willing to take me to the party tonight. My mother will chaperon us."

"With these clothes that have just been hauled out of a saddle bag?" said Harry with a look of alarm.

"Even rags could not hide the beauty of him," said Kelso as he came down from the porch to greet them. "And look at her," he went on. "Was there ever a fairer maid in spite of all her troubles? See the red in her cheeks and the diamond glow of youth and health in her eyes. You should see the young men sighing and gaiter-

"You'll hear me tuning up," Harry declared.

"That is father's way of comforting my widowhood," said Bim. "He has made a wonderful beauty mask and often he claps it on me and whistles up a band of sighing lovers. As a work of the imagination I am a great success."

"The look of you sets my heart afire again," the boy exclaimed.

"Come—take mother and me to the party at Mrs. Kinzie's," said Bim. "A very grand young man was coming to take us in a wonderful carriage, but he's half an hour late now. We won't wait for him."

So the three set out together afoot for Mrs. Kinzie's, while Samson sat down for a visit with Jack Kelso.

The Kinzie's house was of brick and larger and more pretentious than any in Chicago. Its lawn, veranda and parlor were crowded with people in a curious variety of costumes.

Nearly all the festive company wore diamonds. They scintillated on fingers, some of which were knotted with toll; they glowed on shirt bosoms and morning as well as evening gowns; on necks and ears, which should have been spared the emphasis of jewels.

Col. Zachary Taylor, who had just arrived from Florida and was presently returning with a regiment of recruits for the Seminole war, was at Mrs. Kinzie's party. He remembered Harry and took him in hand and introduced him to many of his friends as the best scout in the Black Hawk war, and, in spite of his dress, the young man became one of the lions of the evening.

After refreshments the men went outside to smoke and talk—some with pipes—of canals, railroads and corner lots, while the younger people were dancing and being proudly surveyed by their mothers.

As Harry and the ladies were leaving Col. Taylor came to them and said:

"Young man, I am the voice of your country. I call you to Florida. Will you go with us next week?"

Harry looked into Bim's eyes.

"The campaign will be over in a year, and I need you badly," the Colonel urged.

"I can not say no to the call of my country," Harry answered. "I will join your regiment at Beardstown on its way down the river."

That night Harry and Bim stood by the gate talking, after Mrs. Kelso had gone into the house.

"Bim, I love you more than ever," said the boy. "Abe says you can get a divorce. I have brought the papers for you to sign. They will make you free. I have done it for your sake. You will be under no obligation. I want you to be free to marry whom you will. I would be the happiest man in the world if you were to choose me. I haven't the wealth of some of the city men. I can only offer you my love."

"Be careful and, please, let go of my hand," she said. "I'm not going to say a word of love to you. I am not free yet. We couldn't marry if we wanted to. I wish you to be under no sense of obligation to me. Many things may happen in a year. I am glad you are going to see more of the world before you settle down. It will help you to be sure to know yourself a little better and to be sure of what you want to do."

"I think that I know myself fairly well," he answered. "There are so many better men who want to marry you! I shall go away with a great fear in me."

"There are no better men," she answered. "When you get back we shall see what comes of our little romance. Meanwhile I'm going to pray for you." "And I for you," he said as he followed her into the house, where the older people sat waiting for them. Harry gave the papers to Bim to be signed and attested and forwarded to Mr. Stuart in Springfield.

On their way to the hotel Samson said to Harry:

"I don't believe Bim is going to be carried away by any of these high-fliers. She's getting to be a very sensible person. Poor Jack has caught the plague. He has invested in land. Thinks it will make him rich. He's in poor health, too—kidney trouble—and Bim has a baby with all the rest—a beautiful boy. I went upstairs and saw him asleep in his cradle. Looks like her. Hair as yellow as gold, light complexion, blue eyes, handsome as a picture."

That night, in the office of the City hotel, they found Mr. Lionel Davis in the midst of a group of excited speculators. In some way he had got across the prairies and was selling his land and accepting every offer on the plea that he was going into the grain business in St. Louis and had to leave Chicago next day. He choked the market with bargains. The buyers began to back off. Mr. Davis closed his carpet bag and left.

"It was a kind of horse stealin'," said Samson as they were going to bed. "He got news down there on the main road by pony express on its way to St. Louis. I'll bet there's been a panic in the East. He's awake and the others are still dreamin'."

CHAPTER XIX.

Wherein is One of the Many Private Panics Which Followed the Bursting of the Bubble of Speculation.

Samson and Harry saw the bursting of the great bubble of '37. Late that night, Disaster, loathsome and thousand-legged, crept into the little city. It came on a steamer from the East and hastened from home to home, from tavern to tavern. Great banks had suspended payment; New York had suffered a panic; many large business enterprises in the East had failed; certain agents for the bonds of Illinois had absconded with the state's money; in the big cities there had been an ominous closing of doors and turning of locks; a great army of men were out of employment. The little city was in a frenzy of excitement. The streets were filled with a shouting, half-crazed throng. New fortunes had shrunk to nothing and less than nothing in a night. Lots in the city were offered for a tithe of what their market value had been. Davis had known that the storm would arrive with the first steamer and in the slang of business had put on a life-preserver. Samson knew that the time to buy was when every one wanted to sell. He bought two corner lots in the city and two acres on the prairie half a mile from town. They got their deeds and went to the Kelso's to bid them good-by.

After hearty farewells Samson and Harry set out for their home. They were not again to see the gentle face and hear the pleasant talk of Jack Kelso. He had once said, in the presence of Samson, that it is well to remember, always, that things can not go on with us as they are. Changes come—slowly and quite according to our calculations, or so swiftly and unexpectedly that they fill us with confusion. Learned and wise in the weighty problems of humanity he had little prudence in regulating the affairs of his own family.

Kelso had put every dollar he had and some that he hoped to have into land. Bim, who had been teaching in one of the schools, had invested all her savings in a dream city on the shore of an unconstructed canal.

"Rapid Transit" in the Old Days.

An illustration of the more or less rapid transit facilities between the "villages" of Brooklyn and Flushing as late as 1819 is seen in the announcement of the stage driver who begs "to inform his friends in the city of New York and the village of Brooklyn, Newtown and Flushing that, notwithstanding the opposition which has lately been set up against him, he still continues to run his stage between the villages of Brooklyn and Flushing in an equal if not superior manner to that which he has been in the habit for many years past. He has improved his team with an additional span of very fine horses which enable him to perform his route in a space of 90 minutes, being a distance of 12 miles. Those who wish seats in the above-mentioned stage will please apply at W. & E. W. Nichol's store, No. 8 Fulton Slip, New York; John Bedell's, Brooklyn, and Samuel Lowrey's, Flushing. Fare from Brooklyn to Newtown, 37½ cents, to Flushing, 50 cents."

Electricity for North Atlantic Coast

WASHINGTON.—Secretary Fall submitted to President Harding the analysis made by the geological survey of a comprehensive system for generating and distributing electricity to transportation lines and industries in the north Atlantic coast region between Boston and Washington. The survey was authorized by congress.

The engineers who made the survey reported that 970 miles of 220,000 volt lines and five times that mileage in 110,000 volt lines would be needed. The 1,200 miles of wire now carrying 33,000 volts and over would be operated as simple distribution lines for local industries. This transmission network and its substations would require $104,000,000 by 1930, the report said, in which year the total investment would be $1,109,504,000.

Electrification of the Boston-Washington area, according to the report, would save 50,000,000 tons of coal annually by 1930, or $196,000,000 in fuel expenditure. While electrification of the railroads would save "11 to 19 per cent on their investment."

In his letter to the President, Secretary Fall referred "to the obvious fact that it is by multiplying our manpower by machines that American labor can best meet the competition of cheap foreign labor."

"I believe," he continued, "the engineering facts and economic conclusions here presented will command the attention alike of the financiers, railroad executives, public utility officials, industrial leaders, and others of that large group of our citizens of large vision who are building for the America of tomorrow."

"These economies on a truly national scale will affect not only coal, but capital expenditures as well, and especially the output of human energy. More and cheaper electricity must surely add to the comfort and prosperity of our citizens, and this report on a super-power system is submitted as a contribution of the Department of the Interior to the common welfare."

More Efficiency in Veterans' Bureau

SWEETING recommendations designed to increase the efficiency of the veterans' bureau have been made in a report by the special senate committee investigating government activities for the relief of former service men. The report was the committee's second. The bureau should "broaden its interpretation and widen the scope of application of existing laws," the report said, adding that additional legislation would be sought to meet deficiencies shown. Among recommendations were:

Appropriation of $16,400,000 for hospitals; transfer of all government hospitals, including soldiers' homes not needed by the army and navy, to the bureau, creation of a chaplain corps for service in hospitals and training centers; provision of cemeteries at soldiers' hospitals; standardization of training, permitting the applicant to select as far as possible his own vocation; extension of insurance to $10,000 to each policyholder if he desires, and extension of insurance and compensation privileges to Americans who served in allied forces.

Cancellation of contracts with state, municipal and private hospitals not in existence April 1, 1917, and with all similar institutions which are found unsuitable, was recommended as one administrative reform, others under this head including: Issuance of rules and regulations for the maintenance of order and discipline; thorough inspection of hospitals and training centers, elimination of politics from appointments, establishment of additional vocational centers at institutions where mental and tubercular patients are treated.

To July 1 there had been 388,000 applications for vocational training, the committee found, adding that "although we are approaching the third anniversary of the armistice," only 5,050 have been rehabilitated. Only 12,000 men have accepted training without pay, out of 96,913 eligibles, and only 96,000 with pay out of 159,300 eligibles, the report said.

The committee said that the government had failed to obtain "results commensurate with the large expenditures," in rehabilitation work, and expressed belief that knowledge of the government's failure prevented men "from seeking hospital treatment until too late."

Farmers' Co-operative Organizations

pendent upon effective, organized marketing systems for farm products.

Co-operative associations are increasing rapidly in number and influence; recently they have attained recognition by the Federal Reserve board.

To the average city dweller, particularly those in the East, the extent of the work of county agents in organizing farmers' co-operatives will be almost astonishing. Certain business interests have criticized the attitude of the department, but its policy is that the farmers' business education must now be put on a par with his education in production.

Last year 798 county agents assisted in organizing co-operative enterprises. This was 61 per cent of the total number of agents in the field. The business done through these organizations, as stated, amounted to $75,714,660, and the saving through the co-operative form was $21,152,773. The average business per agent was $826,121, and the saving per agent was $43,304.

American Elms for Lincoln Memorial

TWO American elms have been planted by the American Forestry association on the grounds of the Lincoln memorial. The elms, one for the allied armies and one for the allied navies, were dedicated by Charles Lathrop Pack of Lakewood, N. J., president of the association. After Mr. Pack's short address, Mrs. Warren G. Harding presented her tree-planting trowel to members of the American Legion who placed the trees at the Twenty-third street entrance to the grounds. The trees are to stand at the head of what will be an international avenue of memorial trees to be planted by various world governments, according to the plans of Lieut. Col. C. O. Sherrill of the department of public buildings and grounds, who co-operated with the American Forestry association in plans for the tree planting.

Mrs. Harding brought with her in its walnut box the trowel with which she planted the Ohio tree on the association's grounds last spring. The famous trowel has just returned from Canton, O., and South Bend, Ind., where it had been used for memorial tree planting at the tomb of William McKinley and along the Lincoln highway. Immediately after the ceremony the trowel was sent to Chicago for the American Legion. In dedicating the trees, Mr. Pack said:

"The elm is inseparably connected with the past and present of America. For such an avenue this is a fitting spot—the memorial to Abraham Lincoln. Look about you and you see him. He and the United States are identical. He and you men who fought are identical. He and the cause of the plain people for which you fought are identical. He, Eternal Truth, and the cause we mark today are all identical."

PLENTY LIKE HIM.

"That man never does a thing around this office for all his hurrying and fussing."

"I know it, but he carries the biggest bunch of keys of anybody here and when he hurries they jangle and it's very impressive. Bluff is what gets you by, anyhow, these days. Didn't you know that?"

Baffling Visitor.

"Who's the mysterious stranger in town?"

"I hear he's a propagandist," said Squire Witherbee.

"For what?"

"I dunno. He ain't tryin' to borrow any money, he don't get no mail an' th' clock at th' Eagle house hasn't been able to draw him out yet. Blamed if I see how we're goin' to find out what th' cuss is up to."

Habitual.

"That sailor over there somehow reminds me of an old hen hovering a bunch of chickens."

"I suppose you naturally mean the one brooding over there by the companionway?"

"Oh, no; I mean the one sitting on the hatch."—Judge.

Gifted Orator.

"Senator Shortworthy says we must save the country."

"Has he any ideas about the best way to do that?"

"No, but he can make a speech on the subject that will hold an audience spellbound for an hour."

TRY AGAIN

MISS

Mr. Hardfast—If you don't think two can live as cheaply as one let's try it.

Miss Man-chaser—Oh! This is so—?

Mr. Hardfast—You name one woman and I'll pick out two men and lay you two to one on the men.

Liberal Education.

Regardless of a caddy's years, He's always worldly wise; Considering the talk he hears, That should not cause surprise.

"Most Unique."

"I met with an unusual experience today."

"That so? What happened?"

"I upset an ink bottle on a clean tablecloth."

"Nothing unusual about that."

"Yes, there was; the bottle was empty."

On One Condition.

"You believe in giving the public what it wants?"

"Of course," replied Mr. Stormington Barnes, "always assuming that the public wants myself and co."

Interested in Real Estate.

Mrs. Reading—I admit I prefer the old things. I just dote on "The House of Seven Gables."

Mr. Flathunter—Never heard of it. What does it rent for?

Spring Fashions.

A countryman went to a shop, and after wandering round for some time he went up to one of the assistants.

"I want a mattress, if yer please!" he said.

"Yes, sir! Spring, or ordinary?"

"Well, I didn't want one exactly for the spring, in perlicker; I want it for all the year round!"—Answers.

The Early Applicant.

"That's what I call luck," said Ben Franklin as he got an electric current over his kite string.

"Is your experiment a success?"

"Yes. It shows the advantage of getting in before conditions become crowded. I haven't been told once that the line is busy."

A Modern Diagnosis.

Doctor Karr—What are your symptoms?

Mr. Gormand—Lassitude, doctor—a feeling of fullness and a general disinclination to do anything.

Doctor Karr—I see; you've been exceeding the feed limit.—Boston Transcript.

Sufficient Proof.

"What reason have you," the judge asked, "for thinking your husband is no longer of sound mind?"

"He was in an automobile smashup the other day," she replied, "and admitted that he was to blame."

The Hilarious Rustics.

"Aren't you going to have any merry villagers in your show like they used to have in the old operas?"

"No," replied the musical comedy manager. "They're all supposed to be in the audience."

HARRY HOARY BAT.

"My name is Hoary Bat, but my friends call me Harry," said the Hoary Bat.

"If you like you may call me Harry Hoary Bat, though Harry for short will do just as well."

"Now I am bigger than my cousin the Red Bat, and I am a creature who does not go about as much as he does."

"I am very handsome. In fact people who know me well call me beautiful."

"My fur is soft and I have plenty of brown and white fur too which adds to my smart appearance."

"I am particular as to my appearance. I comb my hair at least once every twenty-four hours. I do not need to buy a comb either as I always have one near at hand."

"As you may very easily guess if you're at all good at guessing, my comb is one of my very, very own which no one can borrow from me."

"My own claws make my own comb! Isn't that fine? They are so curved and so sharp, and so made that I can pull them over my head and back and comb my fur most beautifully."

"I would consider it very untidy if I did not do this."

"And I lick my back and my sides and my face as a kitten washes."

"I have a good appetite. Oh yes, Harry cares for his food all right."

"I gobble it down and smack my lips with joy. I don't eat quite as daintily as I might but then it doesn't make much difference as I am never asked to banquet where my table manners would be noticed especially."

"Of course I grow eating so much and I enjoy being fat. I take too much exercise to allow myself to get too fat, for I can fly well."

"I keep away from people so they don't know me well. Harry Hoary isn't much of a one for company."

"He is a great sleeper too and he won't get up so early in the evenings as some bats will."

"Now when people speak of getting up early, they speak of getting up early in the morning, but when Harry Hoary speaks of getting up early he speaks of getting up early in the evening."

"He is quite willing to speak of getting up early, but he doesn't like to do it and as no one makes him get up he doesn't get up until he is ready."

"There is no one about saying, 'Harry Hoary, hurry and get up!'"

"And no one pulls at my branch and tells me that it is getting late."

"So I get up at the hour I like best of all and that is when it is really dark and when the night has really come."

"I love it then! I love the dark night. And I like to fly about then. In the day time I rest and sleep and in the late afternoon I sleep when some bats are getting up."

"In the early evenings I am still asleep, or at least I am still resting, and then many other bats are up and about."

"Ah, I will not tell you anything else about myself, for it is interesting to think of me and to feel, 'Oh dear, I do not know nearly all about Harry Hoary that I'd like to know.'"

"That is what I would consider a pleasant feeling."

"So in order to let people have that feeling I do not tell everything about myself, nor do I let people see me often so they can watch me."

"I keep my own affairs to myself. That is the way Harry Hoary does, and it is the way all Hoary Bats do."

"But I will tell you that I am very, very strong and my wings are powerful."

"And I will tell you another thing—Harry likes his food, and will eat plenty of it. Food, not style is what Harry Hoary likes. I've told you this before, ha ha! You see I'm not giving away any of my secrets."

"But when it comes to being tidy and neat about one's self—there Harry Hoary is particular. He may not have good table manners but he always is well-groomed, and that means that he is always neat and of good appearance."

Man Like Uncle Jack.

"Mamma," asked five-year-old Ralph, "now that I have a jackknife and a pocketbook, ain't I a man like Uncle Jack?"

"Yes, I suppose so," replied his mother.

"Well, then," the youngster continued, "I wish you'd look and see if my mustache is snarled yet."

"I Like to Fly."

"I Like to Fly."

"I Like to Fly."

"I Like to Fly."

"I Like to Fly."

"I Like to Fly."

BIBLE RESTORED TO OWNER

New Zealander Gets Chance to Give Back "Loot" That Was Taken During the Boer War.

During the Boer war, 20 years ago, a member of a New Zealand contingent took a family Bible from a Boer farm. Apparently there were a fair number of these not very creditable "conveyances," and an appeal was afterward made for the restoration of Bibles so removed, as they were greatly prized by the Boers for family as well as religious reasons. This particular New Zealander carried this Bible about with him. His wife wished it to be restored to its owner, and chance threw an opportunity to do so in his way. He noticed that among the members of the South African football team now in Auckland was one J. S. Olivier, who bore a name similar to that in the Bible. Inquiry showed that the footballer was a relative of the owner of the book, and that it had been a cherished family possession. The book was accordingly handed over to the South African, who will restore it to its owner.

SIGN LANGUAGES IN JAILS

No Amount of Vigilance Is Able to Prevent Prisoners Communicating With Each Other.

Old jailbirds can defy the vigilance of all the wardens in Europe. With mouths half open they can speak to a companion hard by with absolute impunity, the lips and lower jaws never even being moved. If the companion fails to hear, he indicates the fact by putting his finger into one ear as though it were itching. Their dumb alphabet is marvelously complete. A prisoner wants to say that someone is dead. He spells the name on his fingers, then rests his head upon his hands and stamps on the ground—so-and-so is dead and buried. Someone is imprisoned for so many years, and this is conveyed from one place to another by a finger across his ear—one finger being used for each year the man has got, say, three "ear;" for months a similar sign is made on the mouth. Coughs and sneezes of different kinds indicate all manner of distinct things. One well-known cough means "listen." The prisoner who gives it has received a letter; he looks at the palm of one hand, and pretends to scribble with the other.

Isn't It the Truth?

Perkins and Brown were walking up Main street together.

"There goes an old buddy of mine," Perkins remarked as a man passed.

"Who is he?" asked Brown.

"Bill Bristow—poor old Bill!"

"Why 'poor old Bill'?"

"Well, it's this way," Perkins explained. "When the war broke out I enlisted and Bill got married."

"Yes, go on."

"Well, can't you see? I got a discharge more than two years ago now."

Kansas City Star.

"Me and wife had a little jower last night," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, "and when I got the best of the argument she 'lowed that yuarafter she'd suffer in silence. I aim to watch her a day or so, and if she don't kick back I reckon I'll invite all the married men on the Ridge to gather around and enjoy the spectacle."—Kansas City Star.

Out of the Question.

He—A short session of married life has convinced both of us we can't get along together. Your actions have been too sensational. So I suggest that we get a divorce as quietly and quickly as possible.

She—Your suggestion of quietness and quickness is preposterous. I intend to go on the stage.—American Legion Weekly.

ANOTHER WOMAN ESCAPES

Mrs. McCumber Avoided a Serious Operation by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Time

Georgetown, Ill.—"After my first baby was born I suffered so with my left side that I could not walk across the floor unless I was all humped over, holding to my side. I doctored with several doctors but found no relief and they said I would have to have an operation. My mother insisted on my taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I soon found relief. Now I can do all my own work and it is the Vegetable Compound that has saved me from an operation. I cannot praise my medicine too highly and I tell all of my friends and neighbors what the Compound did for me."—Mrs. MARGARET MCCUMBER, 27 S. Frazier St., Georgetown, Illinois.

Mrs. McCumber is one of the unnumbered thousands of housewives who struggle to keep about their daily tasks, while suffering from ailments peculiar to women with backache, sideaches, headaches, bearing-down pains and nervousness, and if every such woman should profit by her experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial they would get well.
